People in Need Taking Our Turn to Give

Be aware of giving from a desire to feel good about ourselves, rather than from a place of connection to all people.

When we see a person in need, we may want to give them something as a way of helping them, but if we give without taking the time to see who they really are. honoring that most of all, our aift is nowhere near as powerful as it could be.

We may want to give a homeless person a sandwich. for example, but if we give it without also taking a moment to look the person in the eye, making authentic contact we rob them of the experience of being human.

Being in a position of need leaves a lot of people feeling vulnerable and full of self-doubt. The greatest gift we can give is to meet people in need without judgment and with the awareness that we are not superior to them simply because we are not currently in their position.

If we take the long view, we can see that we all began life in need of a lot of care and attention, and many of us end life in the same way.

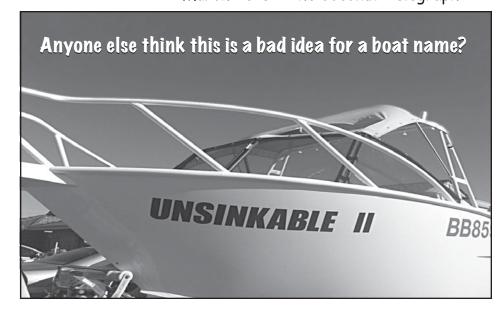

Giving and receiving are companion energies that take turns throughout our lives, and we all get a chance to be on both sides of the exchange from time to time.

It's important to be aware of our own tendency to give from a desire to feel good about ourselves, rather than from an acknowledgement of our connection to all people. Letting go of our self-importance allows us to see that regardless of appearances, we are all givers and receivers.

When we are in the position of the giver, we honor those we are helping when we remember the many people who have helped us. Then we can look the person we are helping in the eye, aware that we are making contact with a human being who is our equal.

Are You Ready?

April Fool's Day is coming - be prepared with these practical jokes...

Sleepers are the easiest to mess with:

Draw funny eyebrows and a mustache on their faces while they asleep.

April 1 is April Fools' Day. Believe nothing and trust no one. Just like any other day.

Place whipped cream in their hands and tickle their nose with a feather.

Place someone's hand in a bowl of warm water while they are sleeping - a sure way to make them wet their pants.

Office pranks:

Go to the office early and tape down the ball on everyones mouse.

Rearrange their office furniture, desk and files.

Torture family members:

Play Dr. Dolittle, Tape a walkie-talkie to your pet or hide it near where the pet is laying. Walk a safe distance away. When a family member tries to pick up or pat the pet say into your walkietalkie in a aruff voice 'I hate it when you do this to me!"

Late at night fill the hair dryer with baby powder. Try to watch the expression on their face when someone who has just washed their hair sees it turn white.

Try this with teenagers. Set the alarm clock for 3am and hide it under their bed.

Glue all the eggs to the carton and ask someone to make breakfast.
