

Rest in Peace, Rick White

You know you're in the Keys when...

The only shoes you own are different varieties of flip flops.

You have driven at least one Keys Cruiser.

You're constantly passed by vehicles with out of state license tags.

There are only 3 levels of sobriety: sober (morning), stoned (afternoon) and smashed (anytime).

You've gone through crib death (an all-nighter at the Caribbean Club), and though you swear you won't again, it just keeps happening.

Your land is worth more than your house.

Someone asks, "Where is Iz-luh-more-a-day?"

Every bartender knows you and what you drink.

You only put on sun block when you are on a boat because otherwise you are always in the shade.

You know everyone everywhere you go and you've known them for 3 generations.

You and your grocery store cashier are on a first name basis.

You party with your car salesman, doctor and house-keeper at the same place.

In order for it to be bad weather, it's got to be a hurricane at category 3 or higher.

In some way or another your income depends on tourism.

You can get anywhere by boat but you have to drive an hour to get to a mall.

Facebook

from Jane Wasmund

I am trying to make friends outside of Facebook while applying the same principles. Therefore, every day I walk down the street and tell passers-by what I have eaten, how I feel at the moment, what I have done the night before, what I will do later and with whom. I show them pictures of my family, my dog and of me gardening, taking things apart in the garage, watering the lawn, standing in front of landmarks, driving around town, having lunch and doing what anybody and everybody does every day. I also listen to their conversations, give them the "thumbs up" and tell them I like them. And it works just like Facebook! I already have four people following me: two police officers, a private investigator and a psychiatrist.
