Labor Day Service at the Islamorada Hurricane Monument on September 2nd

The Matecumbe Historical Trust will hold their annual Labor Day Service on Monday, September 2nd starting at 9am at the Islamorada Hurricane Monument, mile marker 81.5. Please join us in memory of the those who perished in the 1935 Hurricane and for the unveiling of the 1935 Hurricane Map.

The Hurricane Monument memorializes hundreds of American Veterans and local citizens who died in the Hurricane of September 2, 1935.

After World War 1, the newly created Federal Emergency Relief Administration offered the unemployed veterans jobs. Over 600 of these men came to the Florida Keys to help complete U.S. Highway 1.

Each year the Matecumbe Historical Trust holds a service to pay tribute to those who lost their lives.

The service will include the introduction, Invocation, Presentation of Colors, National Anthem, guest speakers, history of the hurricane, the laying of the memorial wreath, Taps, Patriotic songs, the Benediction, and the unveiling of the Hurricane Map.

The Wreath is sponsored by Centennial Bank.

Critters in Our Midst: Raccoons by Carol Ellis

Seeing a raccoon out during the day does not mean it is rabid or dangerous. If it is quiet, and few people or dogs are around, it may come out to forage for food.

I admit it. It was an innocent mistake, your Honor. I plead guilty of feeding the wildlife. It's just my spoiled indoor cats refused to eat the little crunchies of kibble left in the bottom of the bowl. It was no more than a tablespoon worth, but I tossed it onto the ground. I'm sorry.

I realized my error when upon return to the scene of my transgression, a giant raccoon was scratching the ground where I had thrown the kibble. This Northern Raccoon (Procyon lotor) looked pretty healthy. Its fur was bushy and there were no obvious scratches. I stood in the shadows of the garage and watched from a safe distance as I didn't want the critter to take offense and come after me. It turned its head toward me; its brown eyes with black fur surrounding its eyes; the raccoon looked like a burglar caught in the act of stealing, in broad daylight no less.

Urban wildlife is not rare, it's only difficult to see. Animals stay hidden during the day in nearby natural habitat or in quiet crevices around the home, then come out at night to forage. That's why we call them night critters. Proof of their work can be seen in the morning as shown by overturned garbage cans with the contents strewn across the driveway.

Nimble paws and a keen sense of touch helps the raccoon find its food. The raccoon's scientific name is Procyon lotor, when translated means "washing bear." When a raccoon wets its paws, the water stimulates the nerve endings and heightens their sense of touch.

My yard is a pretty happy, nutritious place for critters to live. There are lots of native plants and fruit trees, a pond with frogs, crawly insects, small lizards, snakes and nesting birds that all reside there.

It is best to let wildlife forage naturally, but the crafty raccoon has adapted to begging for food in urban areas. Perhaps this raccoon's well-nourished state is courtesy of the resort's kitchen dumpster.

My suspicion was confirmed as a result of research conducted at Crocodile Lake National Wildlife Refuge, to see how human activities relating to unsecured trash and feral cat feeding stations influence the movements of raccoons and possums. They trapped local possums and raccoons, fit them with radio collars and released them in the area where they were captured. Researchers found out a number of these animals with collars would go up to Ocean Reef and eat each night.

Researchers had a serendipitous discovery when in September 2022, a GPS collar attached to a possum gave off a mortality signal, which is emitted when an animal goes several hours without moving when it should be active. The signal began moving, and it continued to stop and then move again over the period of a few days. The researchers discovered that a Burmese python was responsible, as it had eaten the possum and the radio collar was now inside the snake. They changed the focus of the collared raccoon and possum research toward tracking python.

An x-ray image of a python taken by researchers in Key Largo shows a GPS collar that had been fitted on a local opossum. Photo by: Kelly Crandall

Since 1995 when the Burmese python arrived in the Everglades, there has been a decline of 85% to 100% of the population of medium sized furry animals such as raccoons and rabbits due to the python. When the python swam 25 miles south to their new hunting grounds in North Key Largo, small furry creatures such as the Key Largo woodrat began disappearing. Camera traps placed inside woodrat nests provided evidence when a python preying on a woodrat was caught on video.

Raccoons have few natural enemies other than man, and automobiles kill more raccoon than anything. Luckily for the raccoon, urban food resources do allow these mesopredators - medium sized carnivorous animals such as raccoon and possum - to occur at much higher densities than the natural environment supports, which could indirectly help them sustain some of the python pressure compared to that in the Everglades.

Animal survival success depends on how well they adapt to life with humans. The greatest concern with raccoons is the diseases and parasites they carry. Canine distemper and rabies will kill raccoons, and raccoon diseases can affect unvaccinated pets. The risk of rabies is small. The Monroe County Health Department, whose records go back to 2012, reports there have been no cases of rabies in Monroe County.

According to the April/May 1988 editions of The Ocean Reef News:

"The fourth case of rabies in two months occurred in Key Largo March 4th, 1988. Two confirmed cases determine whether an epidemic rating is issued. Rabies, or neurotropic rhabdo virus, has been documented in raccoons at mile markers 101, 99 and two cases at mile marker 94, CAROL ELLIS has lived in South Florida her entire life and Key Largo for 37 years.

Key Largo. In each case raccoons approached humans during daytime hours acting erratically. Soon after, the animals were found dead and diagnosed in post-mortem as having rabies."

"Monroe County health professionals warn county residents to avoid all wild or unvaccinated animals and this, unfortunately includes squirrels. While many residents possess great affection toward squirrels and their antics, the very treat you present to a squirrel may act as an invitation to less desirable animals."

This collared raccoon was known as "Fighter" - he was covered with scars; a truly wild raccoon who never went into people-occupied areas, such as neighborhoods or the waste transfer station. There aren't many raccoons like him anywhere in the world. Photo by: Mike Cove

The Coconut Telegraph Redneck Hurricane Preparedness Guide

With Hurricane Irma's devastation to the Keys a few years ago I thought it would be a good idea to remind all our readers that you need to be prepared for these types of predicaments.

Immediately after an emergency, and you have seen this time and time again, the first people to be up and running and rescuing others are the rednecks. It's not the Harvard MBAs that are pulling people out of flooded homes with jon boats. It's the rednecks. Nope, a fancy air conditioned, Italian marbled floored, mahogany paneled office full of accountants used to chilled lobster and martini lunches won't do anyone much good in an emergency.

When it hits the fan and there is trouble a redneck will always come out on top of the situation. What is their secret? Preparedness. And this is how they do it...

HURRICANE EVACUATION PLAN

1. GRAB BEER
2. RUN LIKE HELL

Booze: Hide the Budweiser and have a couple cans of Milwaukee's Best in case strangers stop by or you need to barter with neighbors. If you are too drunk to walk then take a kayak otherwise it will take you forever to get anywhere.

Food: Slim Jims and if you want to live large get some

HURRICANE TIP:

BEFORE IT STARTS,

WRITE DOWN ALL THE THINGS YOU LOVE

ABOUT YOUR SPOUSE/CHILDREN.

IT WILL BE REALLY HARD TO REMEMBER

AFTER -72 HOURS WITHOUT POWER.

mustard for dipping, beef jerky, pork rinds and anything that was on the table that the dogs didn't eat and won't go bad without refrigeration.

Boat: A true redneck has a boat in his yard for years at a time without ever using it once. That's because it's for emergency purposes. I highly recommend a two-stroke motor that will always start after it's kicked a few times. Preferably that motor will be a Johnson, because jokes about your Johnson never get old. If kicking it doesn't work call Wheaton's, they can fix anything.

Pickup Truck: When a hurricane hits, it's certain that a redneck in a Ford F-150 that is held together with bondo and duct tape will be pulling your Lexus out of that ditch.

Dog: A dog will tell you if something is edible or not.

Hurricane tip- Don't forget that your washer can be converted into a beer cooler. You're welcome!

Flashlight: You need one in addition to the one the family uses at night to go pee in the canal so you don't fall in.

Radio with a Powerful Speaker: That way you have something to drown out the wife, kids, mother-in-law, your sister-in-law Crystal, your sister Crystal, cousin Crystal, and your neighbor Crystal and her daughter little Crystal. We recommend you tune in to Thunder Country 100.3 FM.

You think shopping for Black Friday is bad? You've clearly never shopped at Walmart before a hurricane!

Home Security System:

Once word gets out how prepared you are, you'll need protection:

1. Buy a pair of size 14-16 work boots.
2. Put them on the front porch with a copy of your most recent assault charge.
3. Put some giant dog dishes next to the boots and court papers.

4. Leave this note on your door: "Jake and Buster: I went to the store for more ammo and Walgreen's for booze. Back soon. Don't mess with the pit bulls; they messed the mailman up bad this morning. I don't think Satan took part; hard to tell from all the blood. I locked all four of 'em in the house. Better wait outside. Be right back."

HURRICANE CHECKLIST

- ☐ First Aid Kit
- ☐ Beer
- ☐ 3-day Supply of Water
- ☐ Beer
- ☐ 3-day Supply of Dry Foods
- ☐ Beer
- ☐ Battery Operated Radio
- ☐ Beer
- ☐ Batteries
- ☐ Beer
- ☐ Flashlight
- ☐ Ice (for Beer)

Guns and Ammo:

I'm not talking about the magazine. Looters will be shot on sight and their loved ones can buy their watches and rings back at the pawn shop. And personally, I'd like to say that if you have a gun then crocodile is always on the menu. If a disaster causes the traffic on US 1 to back up all the way to Islamorada you'll need nourishment. Get yourself prepared in case you have a shortage of rednecks in your area. Don't expect FEMA to be able to get to you or provide for you.

How is a woman like a hurricane?

Because they come in wet and wild but when they leave, they take your house and everything with them!

The entire month of September will bring old favorites and new authors for a Friends (gently used) Book Sale. Reacquaint yourself with "old friends": Annie Wilkes, Clinton Tyree, Jason Bourne and others. Discover “new friends” who will entertain you. Coffee table volumes and large print... So many choices.

Take as many as you like for a price you can’t resist.

Just “make a donation” to the Friends !

If you donate $10 or more you get a free book bag along with your choice of books. The sale goes on through the month and new titles will appear on Wednesdays, so stop by weekly at the Key Largo Branch Library at Tradewinds Shopping Center to get fresh choices.

Friends of the Key Largo Library raises funds to supplement and support community programs at the library.

SINGLE KITTEN SYNDROME

SYMPTOMS INCLUDE: Acting like a kittenzilla, destructiveness, crying/constant meowing, scratching, biting, aggression

Single kittens are the #1 most returned animal at sanctuaries and shelters nationwide.

WHY?

Felines are social animals and typically live in colonies. Kittens need interaction with other kittens for healthy social development. Isolating a kitten can delay development emotionally. Kittens learn play and behavioral boundaries from other kittens. While humans are great, they can't provide the same kind of feedback and play that another kitten provides. Kittens who are able to remain with one of their littermates or similarly-aged companion tend to be healthier, happier, and better socialized. Two cats are actually EASIER to care for than one.

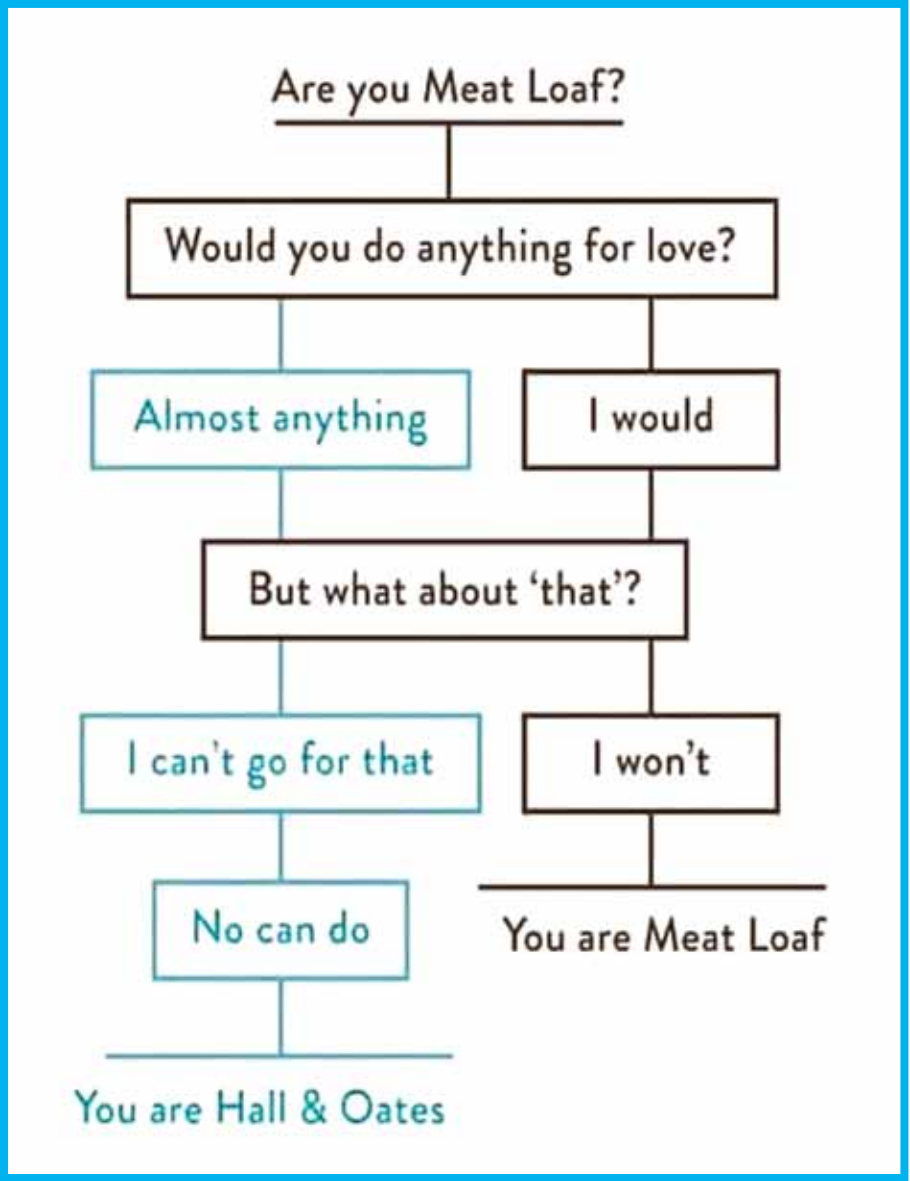

IS YOUR KITTEN?

- Biting ankles and hands
- Full of energy
- Driving your other animals nuts
- Anxious

- Scratching or clawing your arms
- Inappropriately eliminating
- Picky about food
- Suckling obsessively on clothing, blankets, and other pets in household

- Bored
- Destructive
- Excessively meowing

IF SO, YOUR KITTEN NEEDS A FRIEND. ADOPT ANOTHER KITTEN! THE BEST PART IS YOU'LL SAVE TWO LIVES.

Surviving Slow Season --

A blog by Luke Sommer Glenn

Into the depths of hurricane/wet/slow season with canceled shows, fewer people and fewer tips. To add insult to injury, a bored deputy erroneously issued me a citation for supposedly passing in a no passing zone.

He didn't pay attention to the part of the highway code that states you have 100 feet after the solid line begins to return to your lane. I should know. I had to spend four hours in traffic school. I think all the deputies need to get a refresher dose of traffic school themselves. That was a $500 expense I didn't need this time of year. Thanks Barney Fife. There goes the weed budget.

Oh well, one slow season Catch-22 is I have time to fix stuff but no money to get what I need to repair it with. The funny thing about time and money for me, is the two seldom exist in the same space. It's one or the other.

For lawyers time is money, for banks money is time at 30% interest... Unless they're paying you, then it's 0.25% interest. For the most of us we spend our time making money to give to other entities. It's a hard lesson when you realize your time isn't worth as much as everybody else's time but that's the musician/writer/artist life. Suffering for your art. We get by with a little help from our friends...

I try to focus on creative endeavors during the off-season, pursuits that involve imagination over substance because substances cost money. Bills keep coming in. But that's just how life is. The world doesn't stop because you do. The Catch-22 here is everyday realities interfering with the creative process.

For example, the toilet tank cracking in the middle of the night causing the water to run, flooding a portion of the house. Another unexpected off-season expense. Another week without weed. Luckily I get high with a little help from my friends...

This time of year is excellent for breaking in a new bassist, Jennifer Neuman. By the time the snowbirds get back, the band should be sounding good with the dynamics of a new member adding to the excitement, if dead season doesn't kill us first.

It's difficult to find someone that has heard of the material I do and even harder to find someone willing to learn my set list so she's really putting in the work in hopes that we will all be rewarded when season comes back around.

Survival isn't assured, as it is hurricane season. One bad storm and there's nowhere to work or live. The thought of relocating at my age and rebuilding what I have here in Key Largo somewhere else...wow! It's taken 25 years to build the momentum I have now which has endured through congestive heart failure, multiple hurricanes, the year 2020/Covid.

I suck at self promotion. That's why it took me so long to get established around here. I'm an acquired taste. Word of mouth is my most productive advertising tool. I've never been a good sales I don't play current songs. I don't do fads. I don't dress for success. I don't talk the talk, but I rock the rock.

It's too hot down here to wear a bunch of clothes on stage, though some people manage to do it. I get heat rash from wearing long shorts or pants. Like diaper rash but with more whining.

Maybe I could find a gig at a clothing optional resort, not that I have anything worth showing off. It's a comfort thing. I already have a decent base tan from cleaning my pool in the nude. My wife likes to say that the people that bought houses here didn't pay $1 million to look at my ass so I roll over and say, "Well then, they can look at my wiener. We don't have any kids that play outside in our neighborhood anyway." She still doesn't think it's funny. I once got arrested for indecent exposure but they let me go for lack of evidence... goes the old joke.

A lot of my fellow Keys peeps go on vacations this time of year to places that are not as hot as here. Alaskan cruises sound refreshing when the heat index is 116°F. They go visit family in up north or go to the Sturgis rally, though with all the heat waves lately they might have to go all the way to the north pole to cool off.

I've never been on a cruise ship and I have to admit that the ocean is intimidating to me. The one time I went out deep-sea fishing I remember looking over the boat into that endless, deep blue water and feeling like a piece of bait, waiting for something to come up from the depths and swallow me whole. I love living by the water but that doesn't mean I want to be out in the middle of it. I fear the ocean more than I've ever feared any God.

Life is pretty slow during the slow season (hence the name). If it wasn't for picking up the yard after tropical storms there wouldn't be a whole lot to do. The bummer for me is I love to play my guitar but the arthritis is so aggravating and painful it ruins my rehearsal time.

These days I mostly play for my own amusement and that's why during this slow season I'm working on original material with the band. There's a ton of new music that I find personally to be crap and my crap ain't no worse than pop country rap. I'm out of brain space for cover songs. I have forgotten more songs than most people will ever learn. Your average cover band maybe knows 40 songs. My band has about 70 songs ready to go right now.

We get a boost Labor Day, Halloween, Thanksgiving, Christmas, then hell week with New Year's Eve as the exclamation point at the end of the busiest week in the Keys. January is painfully slow as the snowbirds slowly begin to trickle back to the Keys with February, March and April being the busiest. If you don't make money during that time, summer and the following off-season is going to suck. I really hope the recreational weed passes so I can at least grow my own during the off-season. There's probably not going to be any way that the politicians are going to allow us to grow our own, they want us to buy it from their sponsors. I wonder how long it will be before the owners of Anheuser Busch start selling weed? After all marijuana is related to hops.

Kulula is a low-cost South-African airline that doesn't take itself too seriously.

On a Kulula flight, (there is no assigned seating, you just sit where you want), passengers were apparently having a hard time choosing their seats, when a flight attendant announced, "People, people, we're not picking out furniture here, find a seat and get in it!"

On another flight with a very "senior" flight attendant crew, the pilot said, "Ladies and gentlemen, we've reached cruising altitude and will be turning down the cabin lights. This is for your comfort and to enhance the appearance of your flight attendants."

On landing, the stewardess said, "Please be sure to take all of your belongings. If you're going to leave anything, please make sure it's something we'd like to have."

"There may be 50 ways to leave your lover, but there are only 4 ways out of this airplane"

"Thank you for flying Kulula. We hope you enjoyed giving us the business as much as we enjoyed taking you for a ride."

As the plane landed and was coming to a stop at Durban Airport, a lone voice came over the loudspeaker: "Whoa, big fella. WHOA!"

After a particularly rough landing during thunderstorms in the Karoo, a flight attendant on a flight announced, "Please take care when opening the overhead compartments because, after a landing like that, sure as heck everything has shifted."

From a Kulula employee: "Welcome aboard Kulula 271 to Port Elizabeth. To operate your seat belt, insert the metal tab into the buckle, and pull tight. It works just like every other seat belt; and, if you don't know how to operate one, you probably shouldn't be out in public unsupervised."

"In the event of a sudden loss of cabin pressure, masks will descend from the ceiling. Stop screaming, grab the mask, and pull it over your face. If you have a small child traveling with you, secure your mask before assisting with theirs. If you are traveling with more than one small child, pick your favorite."

"Weather at our destination is 50 degrees with some broken clouds, but we'll try to have them fixed before we arrive. Thank you, and remember, nobody loves you, or your money, more than Kulula Airlines."

"Your seat cushions can be used for flotation; and in the event of an emergency water landing, please paddle to shore and take them with our compliments."

"As you exit the plane, make sure to gather all of your belongings. Anything left behind will be distributed evenly among the flight attendants. Please do not leave children or spouses."

And from the pilot during his welcome message: "Kulula Airlines is pleased to announce that we have some of the best flight attendants in the industry. Unfortunately, none of them are on this flight!"

Heard on Kulula 255 just after a very hard landing in Cape Town: The flight attendant came on the intercom and said, "That was quite a bump and I know what y'all are thinking. I'm here to tell you it wasn't the airline's fault, it wasn't the pilot's fault, it wasn't the flight attendant's fault, it was the asphalt."

Overheard on a Kulula flight into Cape Town, on a particularly windy and bumpy day: During the final approach, the Captain really had to fight it. After an extremely hard landing, the Flight Attendant said, "Ladies and Gentlemen, welcome to The Mother City. Please remain in your seats with your seat belts fastened while the Captain taxis what's left of our airplane to the gate!"

Another flight attendant's comment on a less-than-perfect landing: "We ask you to please remain seated as Captain Kangaroo bounces us to the terminal."

An airline pilot wrote that on this particular flight he had hammered his ship into the runway really hard. The airline had a policy which required the Ruby Stern known as "Miss Ruby", was the matriarch of Downtown Card Sound. She was a familiar site to travelers across Card Sound bridge.

On the shirt back is Carol's image of Ruby Stern, matriarch of Downtown Card Sound Road, a place that doesn't exist on any map... yet was home to a community of free spirits, fishermen and independent thinkers who took up residence there. Located on the west side of the road south of Alabama Jack's, and the toll booth, the shack was originally built by workers who constructed the toll bridge around 1968. In 1972 Ruby moved in and lived there for 27 years. She'd sit on the steps of her shack, with an old Colt 44 daring anyone to throw her off the land. She stayed. Not even the destructive forces of hurricane Andrew and the county's condemnation of the shack could send her from her spot on the bay on Card Sound. She moved to a trailer alongside and lived there until 1999 when she had to leave due to illness, and died at age 90.

Resentment

When anger has no outlet, it can morph into resentment with the potential to cause great turmoil.

Anger, when channeled into the pursuit of change, can be a useful tool in our emotional palette. Anger is experienced by most people — some more than others. It is when anger has no outlet and morphs into resentment that it carries with it the potential to cause us great turmoil.

Allowing us to assign blame for the pain we are feeling often eases it, but it creates resentment, which tends to smolder below the surface of our awareness, eroding our peace of mind. The target of our resentment grows ever more wicked in our minds. But resentment is within the realm of our conscious control. We can choose to let go of our resentment and move on with our lives, no matter how painful the event that incited it.

Hanging onto resentment does not serve us in any way. Divesting ourselves of resentful feelings can be difficult, however, because doing so forces us to mentally and emotionally confront the original source of anger. When we cease assigning blame, we realize that our need to hold someone or something responsible for our feelings has harmed us. To release resentment, we must shift our attention from those we resent back toward ourselves by thinking of our own needs.

Performing a short ceremony can help you quell resentful feelings by giving tangible form to your emotions. You may want to write down your feelings and then burn the paper and close your ceremony by wishing them well. When you can find compassion in your heart, you know you are on your way to healing.

Free of resentment, we have much more energy and attention to devote to our personal development. We can fill the spaces it left behind with unconditional acceptance and joy. And, as a result of our subsequent freedom from resentment, blessings can once again enter our lives as the walls we built to contain our anger have been demolished.

September 5: Understanding Indonesia

Despite its large size, Indonesia remains virtually invisible to most Americans. But as one of the world's largest democracies, the world's largest Muslim-majority nation, and as an economic driver of ASEAN, why does it fly below the radar? What are current issues in U.S.-Indonesian relations, and what role can the country play in Asia?

October 3: High Seas Treaty

Areas of the high seas beyond national jurisdiction are facing a degradation of ecosystems due to climate change and the increase in shipping, overfishing, pollution, and deep-sea mining. The recent High Seas Treaty, will attempt to address these issues. How difficult will it be to convince nations to participate?

November 7: Pandemic Preparedness

Looking back at the COVID-19 pandemic, how can we apply the lessons learned in terms of domestic and international policies to future pandemics? Will countries cooperate, and will a consensus emerge on how to manage global health challenges?

How Children Perceive Their Grandparents

1. I was in the bathroom, putting on my makeup, under the watchful eyes of my young granddaughter, as I'd done many times before. After I applied my lipstick and started to leave, the little one said, "But Grandma, you forgot to kiss the toilet paper good-bye!" I will probably never put lipstick on again without thinking about kissing the toilet paper good-bye....

2. My young grandson called the other day to wish me Happy Birthday. He asked me how old I was, and I told him, 68. He was quiet for a moment, and then he asked, "Did you start at 1?"

3. After putting her grandchildren to bed, a grandmother changed into old slacks and a droopy blouse and proceeded to wash her hair. As she heard the children getting more and more rambunctious, her patience grew thin. Finally, she threw a towel around her head and stormed into their room, putting them back to bed with stern warnings. As she left the room, she heard the 3-year-old say with a trembling voice, "Who was THAT?"

4. A grandmother was telling her little granddaughter what her own childhood was like. "We used to skate outside on a pond. I had a swing made from a tire; it hung from a tree in our front yard. We rode our pony. We picked wild raspberries in the woods." The little girl was wide-eyed, taking this all in. At last she said, "I sure wish I'd gotten to know you sooner!"

5. My grandson was visiting one day when he asked, "Grandma, do you know how you and God are alike?" I mentally polished my halo and I said, "No, how are we alike?" "You're both old," he replied.

6. A little girl was diligently pounding away on her grandfather's word processor. She told him she was writing a story.

"What's it about?" he asked.

"I don't know," she replied. "I can't read."

7. I didn't know if my granddaughter had learned her colors yet, so I decided to test her. I would point out something and ask what color it was. She would tell me and was always correct. It was fun for me, so I continued. At last, she headed for the door, saying, "Grandma, I really think you should try to figure out some of these colors yourself!"

8. When my grandson Billy and I entered our vacation cabin, we kept the lights off until we were inside to keep from attracting pesky insects. Still, a few fireflies followed us in. Noticing them before I did, Billy whispered, "It's no use Grandpa. Now the mosquitoes are coming after us with flashlights."

9. When my grandson asked me how old I was, I teasingly replied, "I'm not sure." "Look in your underwear, Grandpa," he advised "Mine says I'm 4 to 6." (WOW! I really like this one -- it says I'm only 38!)

10. A second grader came home from school and said to her grandmother, "Grandma, guess what? We learned how to make babies today." The grandmother, more than a little surprised, tried to keep her cool. "That's interesting," she said. "How do you make babies?" "It's simple," replied the girl. "You just change 'y' to 'i' and add 'es'."

11. Children's Logic: "Give me a sentence about a public servant," said a teacher. The small boy wrote: "The fireman came down the ladder pregnant." The teacher took the lad aside to correct him. "Don't you know what pregnant means?" she asked. "Sure," said the young boy confidently. "It means carrying a child."

12. A grandfather was delivering his grandchildren to their home one day when a fire truck zoomed past. Sitting in the front seat of the fire truck was a Dalmatian. The children started discussing the dog's duties.

"They use him to keep crowds back," said one child.

"No," said another. "He's just for good luck."

A third child brought the argument to a close. "They use them," she said firmly, "to find the fire hydrants."

13. A 6-year-old was asked where his grandma lived. "Oh," he said, "she lives at the airport, and whenever we want her, we just go get her. Then, when we're done having her visit, we take her back to the airport."

14. "Grandpa is the smartest man on earth! He teaches me good things, but I don't get to see him enough to get as smart as him!"

15. "My Grandparents are funny, when they bend over, you hear gas leaks and they blame their dog."

MY BANK HAS A NEW SERVICE WHERE THEY WILL TEXT YOU YOUR BALANCE. IT'S COOL, I JUST DON'T THINK THEY SHOULD ADD "LOL" AT THE END.

Please do not wear FLIP FLOPS if your feet look like you could swoop out of the sky and snatch your dinner from the Bay.

The Professor started the class by telling them, "In Veterinary medicine it is necessary to have two important qualities as a doctor. The first is that you not be disgusted by anything involving an animal's body." For an example, the professor pulled back the sheet, stuck his finger into the butt of the cow, withdrew it, and stuck his finger in his mouth. "Go ahead and do the same thing," he told his students.

The students freaked out, hesitated for several minutes, but eventually took turns sticking a finger in the butt of the dead cow and, sucked on it followed by assorted gagging, retching and spitting, etc.

When everyone had finished wiping their faces, the Professor looked at them and said, "The second most important quality is observation. I stuck in my middle finger and sucked on my index finger. Now learn to pay attention. Life is tough but it's even tougher if you're stupid."

Do you know why nobody has overdosed on marijuana? Because if you laid out 100 joints and a lighter, and told someone to try and smoke all of 'em... By the 4th joint they've already lost the lighter, ordered the pizza, cuddled with their dog, and fell asleep.

OK, so I understand that my body can't digest corn and that's fine. My issue is that I fricking chewed it! How the hell is it coming out back in the shape of corn?! What are they not telling us?

LIVING WITH A DOG IS 90% FOLLOWING EACH OTHER AROUND, WATCHING EACH OTHER GO POTTY, AND WONDERING WHAT THE OTHER HAS IN THEIR MOUTH.

The fact that Keith Richards has outlived Richard Simmons really makes me question this eating healthy & exercise thing.

A man stumbles up to the only other patron in a bar and asks if he could buy him a drink. "Why of course," comes the reply.

The first man then asks: "Where are you from?"

"I'm from Ireland," replies the second man.

The first man responds: "You don't say, I'm from Ireland too! Let's have another round to Ireland."

"Of course," replies the second man.

I'm curious, the first man then asks: "Where in Ireland are you from?"

"Dublin," comes the reply.

"I can't believe it," says the first man. "I'm from Dublin too! Let's have another drink to Dublin."

"Of course," replies the second man.

Curiosity again strikes and the first man asks: "What school did you go to?"

"Saint Mary's," replies the second man, "I graduated in 72."

"This is unbelievable!", the first man says. "I went to Saint Mary's and I graduated in 72, too!"

About that time in comes one of the regulars and sits down at the bar. "What's been going on?" he asks the bartender.

"Nothing much," replies the bartender. "The O'Kinly twins are drunk again."

Just spent 45 minutes on the treadmill .. tomorrow my goal is to turn it on.

I am not saying you are ugly. But you're a six pack and light switch away from sexy.

"This house has a great location! If you own a really good pair of shoes, it's within walking distance of Disneyland, Cape Cod, the Grand Canyon, Mall of America, and Carnegie Hall!"

It's 97 degrees outside. Keep your Pumpkin Spice away from my MARGARITA

An engineer dies and reports to the pearly gates. St. Peter checks his dossier and says, "Ah, you're an engineer — you're in the wrong place."

So the engineer reports to the gates of hell and is let in. Pretty soon, the engineer gets dissatisfied with the level of comfort in hell, and starts designing and building improvements. After a while, they've got air conditioning, flush toilets and escalators, and the engineer is becoming a pretty popular guy.

One day God calls Satan up on the telephone and asks with a sneer, "So, how's it going down there in hell?"

Satan replies, "Hey, things are going great. We've got air conditioning, flush toilets and escalators, and there's no telling what this engineer is going to come up with next."

God replies, "What??? You've got an engineer? That's a mistake — he should never have gotten down there; send him up here."

Satan says, "No way! I like having an engineer on the staff, and I'm keeping him."

God says, "Send him back up here or I'll sue."

Satan laughs uproariously and answers, "Yeah right. And just where are YOU going to get a lawyer?"

If you want to know why Gen X'ers are always mad, it's because we had to replace our record collection with a tape collection that was replaced with a CD collection that was then replaced with MP3s and now we need a subscription to listen to music.

DAMN RIGHT I'M GOOD IN BED. I CAN STAY THERE ALL DAY.

Health Tip: If you add a raisin to your 1-pound bag of M&M's, it becomes Trail Mix and you can eat the whole thing.
